

THE GAZETTE.

FRIDAY APRIL 1.

The Nebraska legislature has done one good thing. It has passed a bill making gambling of any kind a penitentiary offense.

The indications are that the "boom" of this year will be more numerous than ever before known. A public man who hasn't a boom, is a failure.

The perfecting of the principle of perpetual motion and the completion of the Great monument fund, are about the slowest things yet heard of.

The state legislature rather got a corner on the Milwaukee socialist. It has passed a bill reducing the number of aldermen in wards in Milwaukee from three to two. This was done to shut out the majority which the socialists expect at the coming election.

A magnum paper, the Boston Herald, displays this anxiety: "Can President Cleveland obtain the electoral vote of New York again? We are not disposed to express confidence on this point so long in advance of the election." The Herald should have gone so far as to state why there is doubt as to New York going for Cleveland.

The greatest mistake the prohibitionists make is in opposing every temperance movement that does not look toward immediate prohibition. The better way, because it is surer and more christianlike, is to make every advance possible, holding out to every foot of ground that the other great point may be the sooner reached.

Six hundred convicts in Sing Sing prison and seven hundred more at Auburn are crying for work. Warden Brush says that if these idle men are not furnished with some employment some of them will go insane. This is one of the results of heeding the senseless cry of socialists and bogus reformers against convict labor. Wisconsin did a good piece of work—good for the convicts and good for the taxpayers—in defeating all attempts to abolish the contract system.

It is just too awfully sublime for any thing as will be seen from the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette: "There is an air of monumental wisdom, and an attitude of eternal rectitude and utter superiority in the New York Evening Post, unapproachable in modern mortal journalism. The gigantic complacency with which it ignores the incessant advertisement of Cleveland's ignominious failure, and the sublime satisfaction with which it scrawls through the debris of broken promises for crumbs to comfort magnum-worms are hitherto believed to be unattainable, and certainly inexpressible in human affairs."

Senator Sherman is credited with the authorship of the familiar political phrase, "looking after his forces." While secretary of the treasury he went home to Mansfield for a few days and was followed by a lot of newspaper correspondents. Some of them said he was preparing to run for governor, others that he was working up a presidential boom. One of the correspondents boldly asked the secretary what he was doing in Mansfield. It happened that on that day Sherman had contracted with a man to repair some fences on his place, so he told the reporter he had come to Mansfield to look after his fences. Since then the expression has gone the rounds and even crossed the Atlantic.

The current number of the Judge has an admirable cartoon by Mr. Gilliam, which illustrates the popular view of the attitude taken by the prohibitionists toward the New York high license bill. "You ought, of all men, to be the last to oppose this bill," says the citizen to Dr. Funk, of the group, as he stands supporting a pair of drunks in front of a low license saloon. "If you cannot kill an evil, why not restrict it?" With protestantism and sanctimonious face and gesture the prohibitionist replies, "Friend, these understand not my position. It is all rum or no rum." And he beams upon the drunks and the saloon thus makes them. It isn't to be taxed, or restrained if he can help it.

Some missionary work is needed in Milwaukee, it is following from the Advance is true. Here it is: No wonder such men as pastors Ide and Titworth and Everett find their hearts goaded as well as stirred to utmost efforts in order to develop the most many-sided and complete efficiency in their several churches. These are the facts: The number of young men in Milwaukee between eighteen and forty years is 55,000. The number of them in English-speaking Protestant churches is 531. Average attendance of them at Sunday school 436. During 1886, there were from this class 2,130 arrests. One Saturday evening between six and ten o'clock 408 men and boys were counted entering one saloon.

THE MUNICIPAL ELECTION.
There are "republicans" in the republican city of Janesville who are "just dying" for the privilege of voting for democratic John Winans for mayor this spring. Singularly enough, the democratic "Barkis" is willing, though there are republicans who actually speak right against such untidy alliance. By the way, say any one point to a city where the democracy is in a positive majority where such a moulted as a "fusion" or a "union" municipal ticket is known or recognized? Don't all speak at once.

Yes, there are republicans in Janesville who are actually speaking right out against any "one-sided combination," which will not only fool the republicans who take part in the endorsement of Mr. Winans, but which will virtually be an admission that there is no republican in Janesville who is fit to be mayor of the city. And this is the way to speak. When the time comes that the republicans our party of Janesville has no member qualified to fill the office of mayor, it will then be in order to endorse a partisan democrat, but until that time does come the republicans who are playing into the hands of the democrats are doing the republican party a gross injustice by deserting it.

Non-partisanship in municipal elections is a splendid thing when the object is to beat down corruption and purify municipal administration. But why this endorsement of Mr. Winans? What, in all conscience, has he done while mayor that he should be endorsed by republicans? Has he inaugurated a single reform of any description whatever? Has he been in all things or in anything, a non-partisan mayor? Is there any reform, or any special service, that he alone and no one else, no matter who, can carry out or perform? Is there no republican among all the solid, trustworthy, experienced, deserving members of the party that would fill the office of mayor as well as Mr. Winans? These are sober questions for the republicans endorsing a democrat to answer.

The republican convention which meets to-morrow will take issue with such republicans, and will defend the party by placing a candidate in the field. This is common sense and simple justice, and the person nominated should be elected. The Gazette believes in that kind of republican politics which is "all wool, a yard wide, and never shrinks," and for that reason it doesn't believe in being sold out by democrats. It believes in supporting republicans when there are scores of republicans who are well worthy the fullest support of the party. If these so-called Winans republicans are so deeply interested in non-partisanship in municipal elections, why don't they circulate an endorsement paper among democrats bringing out some good republican for city clerk so as to make honors even? If they are sincere in broaching their beautiful theory of non-partisanship, let them try this scheme on. How many democrats could they find to endorse a republican for clerk? Probably not one. Democrats are not fooled in that fashion. This attempt to get republicans mixed in with democrats on the mayoralty, is simply a democratic scheme to defeat the republican ticket, and it is strange that certain republicans can't see it in that light.

THE DEATH OF JOHN G. Saxe.
John G. Saxe, the man of many sorrows, is dead, his death taking place at Albany, New York, on the last day of March. This event was not unexpected, for Mr. Saxe had been in poor health for several years, and during the past four or five years his mind had been greatly affected, so that in the closing days of his successful life he was a mental and a physical wreck.

Mr. Saxe was born in Vermont in 1816. He lived in Burlington in that state for many years, and when a young man was associated with George H. Paul, now postmaster at Milwaukee, in the publication of the Burlington Sentinel. He began to write poetry at an early age, and in 1849 his first volume came from the press. He soon became "the nation's wit and humorist," whose delicious rhymes brought to him fame, and a competence, and to many a household the cheerful smile or hearty laugh. Even across the sea he was known as the Thomas Hood of America. When his name became a national name he received immense sums of money for his poems, and everywhere he was sought after as a lecturer. He was not a rising star for a few years and then began to wane. His rhymes of fifteen years ago were as bright as those of his more vigorous manhood. He wrote much, but always wrote well, and therefore remained popular to the close of his literary career. Twelve years ago began Mr. Saxe's troubles and afflictions, which have hardly ever been visited upon and other prominent man of his country. It is strange how the ruthless diseases of misfortune bowed that man in sorrow. In 1875, when returning from a lecture tour, he was in a railway accident in which he nearly lost his life by the sleeper being thrown from the track and taking fire. It took months for Mr. Saxe to recover from the shock and the bruises of that dreadful experience.

But other troubles—the deepest sorrow that can befall a man—soon threw abiding darkness on the home of Saxe, and the lamp of his life went out forever. Just prior to the railway accident he buried his daughter Laura, and five years after Sarah, an elder daughter, was also taken to Greenwood, and in less than another year the saddest blow of all came when the wife of his youth and mother of his children was laid beside the daughters. But this was not the end of sorrow. In another year the dark reaper again laid his sickle at his door, and Hattie, the only remaining daughter was cut down in the strength of her womanhood. When Mr. Saxe's Brooklyn home had thus been darkened by the ravages of death, and there was no light left for him there, he went to Albany where he had two sons living, and entered the home of John, who the father always thought was "a chip of the old block." Just nine weeks before Mr. Saxe took his abode with John, the latter's wife died, and John himself was stricken down at last so that within nine weeks a daughter, a daughter-in-law, and a son were taken off by the inexorable hand of fate. Saxe then broke down completely under the burden and sorrows, and indeed who could stand under them? He then went to live with his son Charles, his mind gone, his strength with him no more, and there he was tenderly ministered to by the last child, waiting for the coming of the time when he would, like his noble wife, and John, and Laura, and Sarah and Hattie, be laid away in dreamless rest.

Poor Saxe! He made much of this life. He was a grand good man. The fame he won was well won, and it was hoped that in his slowly tread of the downward path of life, the light of his own works, the cheer of his literary friends, the companionship of his wife and children and the brightness of his home, would be to him a special blessing.

THE WRECK OF THE EAGLE

LATER NEWS CONFIRMS THE DISASTER AND MAKES IT WORSE.

Sixty Souls Added to the List of Those Who Went to the Bottom—Remarkable Natural Phenomenon in Kentucky—A Volcanic Outbreak Creates Tsunami in a Remote Section.

St. Johns, N. S., April 1.—The steamer Eagle was last seen near Funk's island on the night of March 31, during a terrible storm. Next morning she was missing. Wreckage, including the name board "Eagle," was passed by two whaling steamers which have just arrived at Greppouin, 100 miles from here. All the vessels of the fleet except the Eagle have been seen or heard from since the storm of the 31st, and there is no doubt that the Eagle went on to the reef of Funk's island and was broken to pieces, and the crew and 510 sail-fishermen on board are given up for lost. The storm is said by old sailors to have been the worst ever known on the coast. Capt. Jackson was known until a few seasons ago, as the "King of the Sealing Fleet," on account of his skill and success. Of late he has been unlucky. He lost the steamer Rosolito last year near the spot where the Eagle was last seen, but all the crew escaped. Most of those lost on the Eagle lived here and the city is in mourning.

KENTUCKIANS TERRIFIED.

A Volcanic Outbreak at Stingers Bluff Drives Everybody Fleeing.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., April 1.—Intelligence was received in this city Thursday of volcanic disturbances and eruptions of blood river, near New Concord, Calhoun county, Ky., Wednesday, which have frightened the inhabitants out of their wits. The phenomena were first noticed Tuesday afternoon, when all the wells in the neighborhood, which are generally full at this season, were found to nearly dry. The same night strange rumblings were heard in the earth similar to an earthquake shock, but there were no shakings of the ground. The rumblings, however, followed each other in rapid succession, and so alarmed the inhabitants that they were afraid to go to bed, but stood in their doorways and in the streets anxiously discussing the phenomena. About 10 o'clock an explosion was heard in the direction of Stingers bluff, two miles from New Concord. A column of fire was seen to shoot toward the heavens at least 100 feet.

It is said that a perfect pandemonium followed. Men, women, and children, thinking the day of judgment had come, fell upon their knees and began praying and begging for mercy. Horses and cattle went wild with fright and panic, and kicking in the most frantic manner, flew from their stables, and there was a tremendous uproar generally. The explosions continued at intervals throughout the night, and the columns of fire continued to shoot upward. Some of the more courageous citizens have made a visit to the bluff, but find the last so fearful of its, but not last night seem to be flowing down the western side of the bluff.

When the information left the remarkable eruption was still in progress, and the majority of the people were perfectly wild with terror. The scene of the phenomena is one of the wildest and most rugged parts of the state. Blood river is a small stream which empties into the Tennessee above Birmingham. New Concord is a small hamlet on Blood river, probably three miles from its mouth and ten miles north of the southern terminus of the Louisville and Nashville railroad or steamboat communications, the nearest railroad station, and offers to the traveler a point of view, which is of great interest. The eruption was so violent, so that full particulars are impossible.

Hard Lines for Lumbermen.
FREDRICKSON, N. S., April 1.—Many lumbermen are suffering from the Maine woods and they tell a pitiful story of hardship. The snow in the woods is seven feet deep. One party of six men were two weeks on the road here from the camps. Their only money was in Maine bank notes on which there is 20 per cent discount, and it cost them over a month's wages to get home.

Three Men Fatally Sealed.
RICE, Pa., April 1.—A frightful sealing accident occurred in the ice here Wednesday. Three men, Patrick Kelly, William McClelland and E. L. Sturtevant, of Cleveland, were fatally burned. They were taken to St. Vincent's hospital.

Base Ball Game.
SAVANNAH, Ga., April 1.—The base ball game Thursday resulted: Savannah 2, Detroit 7. Only eight innings were played. This is the last game of the series.

THE LEGISLATURE.

The Senate Disposes of Many Bills.

Several Memorials to Congress Concurred in or Killed.

OTHER BUSINESS CONSIDERED.

Special to the Gazette.
MADISON, April 1st.—In the senate this morning bills repealing the law of 1885 by which persons making improvement on any land had lien on entire property was passed.

In the assembly bills were concurred in punishing employers for black listing any employee; prohibiting insurance and other corporations organized under chapter 88, laws of '78, from doing business until two hundred thousand dollars of stock has been subscribed for and fifty thousand dollars paid in; submitting constitutional amendment to people placing school matters more completely under the power of legislature.

Two bills appropriating money to victims of capital disaster and a bill providing for completion of the capital building were killed.

In the assembly bills were concurred in regulating the sale of intoxicating liquor by pharmacists; requiring the governor to appoint four game wardens; allowing counties of more than 125,000 population to build additions to county insane asylums if deemed necessary by the state board of charities; requiring railway companies to carry mixed car loads of live stock if separated by partitions; allowing architects and civil engineers to place liens on property for payment of services; a memorial to congress asking for canal connecting Lake Superior and the St. Croix river. A bill providing that engineers of stationary engines be licensed was killed.

NOT DOWN ON THE B L.

A Little Diversion on the Stage of a Brooklyn theatre.
New York, April 1.—James Murray, aged 35, son of David Murray, a deputy tax commissioner of this city, was locked up in a Brooklyn station-house Wednesday night on a charge of disorderly conduct. He took dinner with a friend earlier in the morning, after which he dropped into the Park theatre to see Sgt. Smith Russell's comedy, "Pa." In the third act of the play there is a clever exhibition of dancing by one of the characters, and while this was going on Mr. Murray took off his coat, laid his arms out, and made his way down a side aisle to one of the proscenium boxes, jumping from there to the stage. He then danced a hornpipe so well that most of the audience thought he was a member of the company, and his decision was heightened by the excellent behavior of the players upon the stage. Murray was allowed to finish his hornpipe, and was then told by Mr. Russell to leave the stage. He did so, quietly walking off at a side entrance, where he was taken in charge by an attendant and handed over to the police. He was drunk, but it is a little weak in the head for a suetstroke.

BRIEFLETS.

—Did you pick it up?

—The market for April Pool packages was slow.

—The foot-killer was abroad in the land to-day.

—Weather probabilities are still "clear and warm."

—Some one must have April-fooled the weather clerk.

—The democratic ward caucuses will be held this evening.

—A caucus party is to be given soon by the Young Men's Quindry club.

—B. B. Olds who was committed to the insane asylum from Clinton, is dead.

—Manager Myers' orchestra last night did remarkably well. Everyone that heard it was loud in its praise.

—Several attorneys interested in the Oakland Retreat matter are in Chicago to-day listening to testimony.

—A delegation of ladies from the Wayside Inn will attend a temperance meeting at the La Prairie grange hall.

—Agnes Haddon was almost poisoned by a New York crank. As she refused to marry him he sought revenge by getting her to eat some "doctors' fruit."

—At the funeral of John Johnson yesterday afternoon, the Rev. H. W. Spalding, D. D., officiated. An appropriate song service was rendered by the choir of Christ church.

—One local grocer came near losing his best customer to-day by apposing that an order for "a fat pound dry raspers" referred to April Fool's day instead of to "dried raspberries."

—A copy of Spaulding's new base ball guide has been received at this office. The book contains pictures of Kelly, Conners, O'Rourke Brothers and Anson, and a schedule of all the games for 1897.

—Milwaukee woman suffragists deny that women have a right to vote for anything except school officials. In Madison, however, several women have registered and intend to put the law to a test.

—Local politics have been very active on the streets to-day. Candidates of both parties are canvassing for the spoils of their respective conventions, and there is no end to the buttonholing on the street corners.

—Birth-day bunches of flowers are all the style, heliotrope being the favorite. It reminds one of forget-me-nots.

Walter Helms informs us that he is making up a great many. Put up in attractive style in boxes they make very dainty and appropriate gifts.

—The executive committee of the W. C. T. U. express their sincere thanks for a donation from Willie VanKirk and Ochs. Helmsdorf consisting of funds raised by them, two years ago for a company of cadets which company failed to materialize. Cash $7.90 and 26 gumbars.

—About six o'clock last evening a team belonging to Burr Robbins ran away. Near the corner of Main and North Second streets, the team struck Brice & Brown's delivery wagon. A snort was driven deep in the breast of one of the runaways, the injuries inflicted being fatal.

—The municipal tickets will be completed to-morrow. So far the republicans have made excellent nominations, and have selected representative men who will command the support of all republicans. Let the good work continue until completed, and then, if republicans will only "stand by their colors," the victory is sure.

—Ira Dingham, of Koshkonong, carried home two hundred Janesville dollars yesterday having sold to H. D. McKinney a fifty coming two years, sired by his horse Phallanout out of Ira's Hambleton mare. As Mr. McKinney shipped the filly to a party in Detroit there must have been a handsome advance over the price paid.

—The Rockford papers have got a baby sensation. It was born Friday, and with the wooden cloth that was swathed about the baby it weighed only 44 ounces. In length it was about eight inches, and its head is not larger than a small orange. The little hands are not as large as a cat's paw and the fingers are the size of straws. It was so small that a doll's clothes would have fitted it well, but none of these being available the little midget was wrapped in a piece of handkerchief.

—Mr. Thomas Bowles received a dispatch last evening from New York, announcing the safe arrival of the steamship Oregon. Among the passengers are Dr. S. S. Judd and Mr. Wm. Hadden, of this city. Messrs. Bowles & Hadden, and Galbraith Brothers, have a number of horses on board. The ship will reach the dock at New York sometime to-day. To-day Mr. Hadden telegraphed from New York that they had landed. The horses consigned to Galbraith Bros. are still at sea.

—The Rev. S. P. Wilder has received a unanimous call from the First Congregational church. At the meeting last evening there was a large attendance, but not a dissenting voice. Mr. Wilder is to receive $1800 a year and the church will pay his expenses in moving. As was stated last week, he graduated from Beloit college and from Andover Theological seminary. He entered the ministry two years ago, and was given a charge in Vermont, but for seven years past he has remained at his present location, in North Brookfield, Mass.

—Frank Mattson, an old Rock county boy, has returned after two years absence. During this time he has circumnavigated the globe. Starting in British Columbia he went to San Francisco, and from there to the Sandwich Islands and the Navigator Islands. A short time later he reached New Zealand and spent considerable time there and in various parts of Australia. When he left, South Australia last January, the thermometer indicated one hundred and twenty eight in the shade. On his way home he passed through the Indian ocean, the Red sea, the Mediterranean sea and stopped in England and Belgium. The steamer on which he started for New York was driven back seven days by a storm, but he reached America at last, firm in the belief that Rock county takes the lead over them all. His experiences were decidedly interesting.

—The argument used by some of the republicans who signed the call for Mr. Winans for mayor, on the ground that his legal ability would be valuable to the city and could be drawn on gratuitously, is an argument that lacks the weight of good common sense and is not worthy of consideration. Mr. Winans is recognized as a good attorney. If the city has occasion to use his legal talent, it is abundantly able to pay for the same, and no tax payer would question the investment. If the democratic party are so much in favor of a people's ticket why did they oppose the suggested charter amendment providing for the election of ward aldermen by popular vote. So long as party lines are so closely drawn the republican party will consult their own interests by loyalty and it has no lack of good material for any office within the gift of the people.

—When people around town looked at Section 18, Chapter 4, of the state constitution, they found that it read: "No private or local bill which may be passed by the legislature shall embrace more than one subject, and that shall be expressed in the title." This discovery became decidedly interesting when applied to the charter amendments for Section 8 of these; which reads: "Chapter 171 of the laws of 1895, entitled 'An act to incorporate the Janesville manufacturing and hydraulic company,' is hereby amended by adding thereto the following: 'Before any work of construction shall be done hereunder, the consent of the city of Janesville shall be obtained thereto.' As this section is not mentioned in the title of the bill and as it relates to a separate subject, attorneys around the city think that it cannot be enforced.

DOING THE FAIR THING.

Merchants are anxious to help along the working.

"It catches people better than anything we ever started," said E. B. Heimsdorf, referring to the wedding at this year's fair. "Everybody seems willing to give," and he handed the reporter another list of presents. The list is as follows:

Mark Ripley—$500 insurance policy for three years on their goods.

Bort, Bailey & Co., one dozen fine napkins.

W. T. Vankirk, one carpet sweeper.

A. Joiner, Emerald Grove—one trio pure bred Brahma chickens.

J. A. Fathers—one traveling trunk.

Wm. Sadler—unbroken lap robe.

P. Quinn—one silk miller for groom.

One silk handkerchief for bride.

Conners & Murphy—hat for bridegroom.

John Myers—one dozen brooms.

Cash Shoe Co.—one pair fine congress shoes.

John Griffith—one granite top.

Charles F. Turner—one dozen photos of bride and groom.

Crossett & Bonestell—one sack Rising Sun patent flour.

S. H. Jomer—one trio Plymouth Rock chickens.

George Charlton—one pair Poland China pigs, will weigh 100 pounds each.

John Jones—one box best laundry soap.

Hanchett & Sheldon—one granite coffee pot.

R. T. Rooney—one pair coarse wool lambs.

JENKINS WONDERS.

PERSONAL.

—Miss Jennie Geddes is visiting for a few days at Monroe.

—Miss Mary E. Kinney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Kinney, of the fourth ward, a student at Oberlin, Ohio, is home spending a brief vacation.

—The Rev. James Sillid has arrived from Andover, and is a guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Doe. He will fill Trinity pulpit for the first time next Sunday.

—Mrs. C. B. Curtis and son, of Ft. Atkinson, are in the city for a few days visit with her mother, and brother, Mr. S. F. Sanborn, North Second street, second ward.

—Major George M. Randall, U. S. A., and wife, arrived in the city last evening from Detroit, where the major is now stationed. They are stopping at the old homestead, on Ruger avenue, with the major's brothers and sister.

DIED.

Edmond F. Broderick, aged 27 years, died this morning of consumption, at the home of his brother-in-law T. B. Leachy.

His funeral will be held at St. Patrick's church Sunday at 2 o'clock p. m., Rev. E. M. McGinnity officiating.

THE REPUBLICANS.

The Result of the Republican
Primaries Last Evening.

The Ward Tickets and Delegates to the City Convention.

The meetings largely attended. The republicans of the several wards assembled last evening in accordance with the call of the committees for the purpose of nominating ward officers and selecting delegates to the republican city convention, which will assemble at the common council chamber at one o'clock to-morrow afternoon. The caucuses were all largely attended, and the best of feeling prevailed. The following is the result:

FIRST WARD.

James Shearer was elected chairman, and Theo. W. Goldin, secretary.

The following nominations were made: Alderman—D. P. Smith.

School Commissioner—J. C. Metcalf.

Delegates to city convention—W. T. Vankirk, O. F. Nowlan, George Haddon, R. L. Colvin, E. S. Taylor.

Ward Committee—O. F. Nowlan, J. G. Saxe and L. C. Brownell.

The delegates to the city convention were given the power to cast the vote of all absentees.

On motion adjourned.

THIRD WARD.

B. B. Eldridge was elected chairman and M. G. Jeffers, secretary.

Following are the nominations made: Alderman—James A. Fathers.

School Commissioner—Cyrus Miner.

Supervisor—Fenner Kimball.

Constable—T. L. Acheson.

Delegates to the city convention—O. H. Fathers, C. B. Conrad, J. O. Fredendall and L. M. Nelson.

On motion of B. R. Hill the delegates were instructed to vote for and put in nomination a full straight republican ticket.

The chair appointed a ward committee consisting of O. H. Fathers, C. B. Conrad and S. B. Phelps.

On motion adjourned.

FOURTH WARD.

A. P. Bennett was elected chairman and Dr. Thor Judd secretary.

Following are the nominations made: Alderman—W. W. Willis.

Supervisor—Levi B. Carle.

Constable—J. T. Drake.

Delegates to the city convention—J. B. Green, Dr. Thor Judd, Sutton Norris, Frank Gray, Adam Sanner, Peter Howland.

The chair appointed as a ward committee for the ensuing year: Messrs. M. M. Phelps, J. B. Green and Peter Howland.

On motion adjourned.

FIFTH WARD.

Mr. A. McDougal was elected chairman and Wilson Lane secretary.

The following ward ticket was placed in nomination:

Alderman—A. E. Rich.

School Commissioner—Paul Randolph.

Supervisor—George Kastner.

Constable—James Rook.

Delegates to city convention—J. B. Hame and Wilson Lane.

The ward committee is Messrs. Q. O. Sutherland, N. E. Bennett and J. G. Wray.

A resolution favoring the nomination of J. G. Wray for water commissioner was unanimously adopted.

The caucuses adjourned.

AMUSEMENTS.

AROUND THE WORLD.

The audience that saw Jules Verne's hero go "Around the World in Eighty Days" was a large one. There were a few empty seats down stairs, but balcony and gallery were crowded.

The play is too well known to need any review. "Phileas Fogg" was well presented by W. J. Flemming, F. W. Grotton as "Jean Passe Partout," J. P. Fleming as "John Archibald," and Miss Allen as "Annie" also deserved praise, but most of the other characters were weak. Still, there was enough merit to keep the audience in good humor and the applause was frequent. Some of the scenery was very good. It showed the effects of a seasons travel but was well suited to the situations and only needed a little touching up to make it decidedly effective. The ballet, however, was below the average and showed a lack of drill.

THATCHER, PRIMROSE & CO.

Chicago and New York papers unite in saying that Thatcher, Primrose & West's Minstrels, as now organized are the strongest in the country. The troupe is a remarkably large one. It started with over sixty members, and even now, when out on tour because of the inter-state commerce law, has over forty. The performance given in all of the large cities, drew audiences of the most fashionable people.

Injurious ingredients are banished from Fairbank's Soap, and housekeepers know it.

Election Notice.

Notice is hereby given, that at the election to be held in the city of Janesville on the first Tuesday in April, 1897, for the election of city and ward officers, the question whether water works shall be constructed and owned by the city, will be submitted to the qualified electors of the city of Janesville, who are taxpayers in said city. The form of ballot will be as follows: "For private construction." "For city construction."

CNAB. E. CLAUDE,
City Clerk.

Janesville, Wis., April 1, 1897.

No misrepresentation or exaggeration to say that Fairbank's Soap is the best in the world.

MAGAZINE NOTES.

Items Concerning Current Numbers of American Periodicals.

Subscriber's Magazine for April opens with the first installment of the long expected "Unpublished letters of Thackeray," which more than justify the great interest aroused by their announcement. The rest of the number is fully up to this standard and contains much valuable reading.

In view of the present lively interest in Russia, the readers of the April number of Harper's Magazine will enjoy the attractive article by Ralph Meeker, entitled "Through the Caucasus." Mr. Meeker sketches a visit made to the most unfamiliar province in that anomalous realm during the excitement of the late war between Russia and Turkey. He claims that "no country having railways and telegraphs is so little known as Russia. Every type of civilization and every grade of barbarism are found within its boundaries." The illustrations are by the author's fellow-traveler, F. D. Millet, and are capital ones. The conclusion of the article will appear in the May number.

The Southern Divorce for April contains the first paper by General E. M. Law, on "The Fight for Richmond." General Law tells his story with great clearness, and it will read with interest, especially at this time, because of the controversy concerning the conduct of General McClellan. In the same number the concluding paper on John C. Symmes, with an excellent portrait of the theorist from a pencil sketch by his brother, Morris M. Casady, explains how it was the General S. B. Backer, the third in command, was left to surrender Fort Donelson, and Judge Hines' article of the operations on the lakes and the execution of John Y. Beall.

The American Bookmaker for this month is unusually attractive. This journal is intended to occupy the middle ground between the unscrupulous and the highly technical information in book making, for which there is much demand.

The Forum for April is a more than usually bright number of a bright and thoughtful magazine. Professor T. Davidson writes on "Mental Training in Public Schools." H. B. Blackwell treats of "Woman's Suffrage Problems," claiming the suffrage as a right as plain as that of personal liberty, and putting aside with contempt the objection that the presence of women at caucuses and the polls would endanger morality; Mr. John Snyder asks "Do we Need Prohibition?" and gives strong reasons for a negative answer, and the author of "John Halifax Gentlemen," in a paper headed "For Better, for Worse," discusses the marriage laws.
